

SERMON NOTES:

July 25, 2010

Highlights

Pastor: Rev. Murray Lees

Ministry Team: Entire Congregation

God's pattern is not always immediately apparent. It takes patience, but we will get great things from God if we are able to hold on to the end.

Did You Know:

Marc Imboden, “You Are Holy,” was raised singing and touring in a family of seven, but it wasn't his experiences in front of an audience or on stage that made him decide to launch a full time career in music. Instead it was his growing relationship with God and his deeper understanding of how worship encompasses your whole life that inspired Marc to write songs, teach and lead worship on a more demanding basis that he decided to make a life of it. He has the ability to capture the attention of audiences of all ages, bringing them into the same experience, touching all of their senses, and relating to each the identity and love of Christ. Someone once said that “He was like a Tony Campolo, a James Taylor, and a Michael Card all rolled into one!” If you catch him and his band, you'll hear everything from the wild Celtic sounds of penny whistles, fiddles, accordions and hammered dulcimers in songs like “Selah”, to simple stripped down acoustic sets with world percussion, guitar and violin. Although it might be difficult to describe his unique style you might say that it's an alternative acoustic, Dave Matthews like, sometimes a little Celtic sounding, but always original. His leading worship is not geared toward a particular style as much as it is geared toward leading people into “real worship” and deepening their ability to give affection to God. Marc teaches in workshops and seminars that worship is not just about music or hymns versus choruses, it is about making your whole life a “kiss towards God”. His desire is that people come away from a “worshipful experience”, or a “worship service” with the realization that our lives are our worship service to God.
